

The Operation

In the early hours of a Saturday morning in October part of a living human being is found outside a Dublin hospital. It is little more than a torso, just the trunk and head of a man, without arms or legs or external genitalia. Surgical intervention has deprived him of sight, hearing, smell, taste, and most touch. The torso, maintained on life-support equipment, is identified as Harry Tate, an armed robber released four months earlier from Barton High Security Prison in East Anglia. The case goes to Inspector Joe O'Brien, a specialist in sex crimes, who was investigating a murder at the prison. He returns to Barton, an institution rife with corruption, bullying and drugs. He is led into the glamorous world of Essex money. Soon another torso is found, in the same state, also a former inmate of Barton, this time in Italy. A name keeps cropping up, Gloria, a young girl who was involved with both victims, but who has disappeared. The investigation leads O'Brien down a strange and disturbing road. And at the end of the road is a place even more shocking than he could have imagined.
